husband who killed Mrs. Kaleikini. There was no possibility of doubt, he said, of it being anybody who might look like the husband.

Bernard shot out his testimony as if he was making a political speech. He did not hesitate a moment and what he did tell he told clearly.

Bernard had known, he said, that Mrs. Kaleikini had a husband, but until that last Saturday night he had not known that the defendant, whose face was nevertheless very familiar to him, was the husband.

JAPANESE ARE INCREASING FAST

born in the Territory is immediately registered, and for the last year or two a birth certificate is asked for in practically every case. The Orientals realize that if their children are going to stay in America they will wish to become citizens and that the easiest manner by which all difficulty can be avoided is by registry of birth. With the Americans and the descendants of the European races there is not so much care taken in this regard and many births take place which are never recorded with the Board of Health.

The most interesting facts which can be obtained from the figures of the Board of Health are in connection with the Orientals. Of Japanese there has been enormous increase in the past year. Comparisons are in complete, for in the past the reports have not been made by nationalities and have been for the calendar year instead of for the fiscal year, as in the present case. What the Japanese increase amounts to can be seen at a glance from the following showing the births of this nationality for the past seven years and for the first six months of the present year: 1901, 502; 1902, 580; 1903, 655; 1904, 596; 1905, 658; 1906, 705; 1907, 1496; 1908, (six months only) 1351.

The Japanese births for the first six months of the present year are far more numerous than for any full year with the single exception of 1907 and they nearly equal the total for that period.

The number of births among the Chinese here has fallen off since 1901, but for the past four years has maintained a yearly average of about 380, showing no difference which is noticeable either in the line of increase or decrease.

In the first six months of 1908 the Japanese birth rate figure for the various islands are interesting. Oahu leads by a large majority, though of course there are many more Japanese on Hawaii. Few of these are married, however, while on this island the women are more numerous. The figures for the past six months mentioned are as follows: Oahu, 499; Hawaii, 383; Kauai, 287; Maui, 182; total 1351. The total Chinese births recorded for the same period were 189, of whom 117 were born on this island.

The following table gives the births for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908.

	Males	Females	Totals
American	71	55	126
British	16	14	30
Chinese	209	179	388
German	20	17	37
Hawaiian	359	315	674
Japanese	1308	1137	2445
Portuguese	324	260	584
Porto Rican	97	77	174
Spanish	43	43	86
Others	24	18	42
Total	2478	2115	4593

At any rate it is better to burn your bridges behind you than in front of you.

A-H BOSS IS HERE

The American-Hawaiian Steamship Company's Pacific Coast Manager, C. W. Cooke, was an arriving passenger this morning from San Francisco in the A-H. S. S. Mexican.

He is here for a trip of inspection and will visit Kahului, Kaunapali and Hilo with a view to familiarizing himself with conditions at all island ports in regard to the handling of sugar and other freight.

Mr. Cooke's visit, in view of recent talk of the starting of a locally independent steamship line to handle sugar exports, is significant.

It is not believed by shipping men that the American-Hawaiian S. S. Co., will give up the business in these waters. They will certainly not abandon the Pacific where the trade will before long be terrific and they even have plans mapped for the handling of Pacific-Atlantic freight on the opening of the Panama canal.

PRISONERS FROM ATLANTIC FLEET

THE SUPPLY SHIP ARETHUSA RETURNS FROM HONOLULU WITH THIRTY CONVICTS.

VALLEJO, August 19.—The supply ship Arethusa of the Atlantic auxiliary fleet arrived at the Mare Island Yard shortly after the noon hour today, direct from Honolulu. Lieutenant-Commander B. B. Berr, who is in command of the ship, paid his respects to Commander T. S. Phelps shortly after his arrival. He stated that the ship had left Honolulu on August 1st and had a nice trip outside of the last three days, when they experienced pretty rough weather.

The ship had on board ten sick patients and two insane men, who were transferred to the ship from the vessels of the Atlantic fleet while they were at Honolulu for the Mare Island Hospital. There were also thirty general court-martial prisoners on board from the fleet. Among these are two men who are sentenced to serve ten years apiece in San Quentin.

The Arethusa anchored in the straits, as there is no room for the vessel at the quay wall at present. The ship is to be given a survey at the yard in the near future in order to determine the extent of the repairs to be done on her. When ready for active service the ship will be assigned to the Pacific fleet.

UNCLE DANIELSON'S KICK.

"Blame these here wedding parties!" ejaculated Pene Danielson, as he removed another broken hook from his line.

"What's the trouble, old man?" asked the stranger in the lunch.

"Why, begosh, ever since that honeymoon couple took the boat at this pier I can't pull up anything but old boots and old shoes."

TRY IT FOR A DAY.

There is something about the atmosphere of Haleiwa that builds up the system quicker than any tonic one may take. Maybe it's the food and the atmosphere combined; they're both pure and there is plenty of each. The rooms at Haleiwa are mosquito-proof, the service is good and the golf links all that the most enthusiastic golfer could dream of. Take a run down a day, letting Manager Ridgwood know if you will remain longer, and see if you are not benefited.

HEROIC PURSUIT OF AN EDUCATION

NORMAL SCHOOL GIRL WHO WALKED TWENTY MILES DAILY FOR SCHOOLING AT HILO.

For a heroic pursuit of an education a Hawaiian girl on the Normal school roll must surely take front rank. Her name is Kalahiki Piliwale. She is the daughter of a taro planter on Hawaii. As a child Miss Piliwale carried along her studies as far as a little country school enabled her to do. For higher advancement the nearest school available to her was at Hilo. This was between nine and ten miles from her home, yet her enthusiasm for learning was such that the distance did not appal her. Day after day, month in and out, she walked the nearly ten miles each way. After spending some time in attendance at the Hilo school Miss Piliwale entered Kamehameha Girls' school here and from there last year went to the Normal school to study for a teacher's diploma. Principal Wood says she is very studious. In vacations she has been working to earn money for her expenses, being engaged the present one as a helper at some country mission station.

Jonathan Shaw heard of this heroine lately while on a visit to the Volcano. He was conversing with a teacher whose school is situated about five miles from Hilo, who told him that a number of her pupils, when they had gone through the highest grade with her, attended the Hilo high school, footing their ten miles a day to and from the institution. They comprised pupils of various nationalities—Hawaiian, Portuguese, Porto Rican, etc. When Mr. Shaw uttered surprise at such eagerness for schooling, the teacher told him about Kalahiki Piliwale and her twenty-mile daily hikes for knowledge. On returning to town he made inquiries the result of which was corroboration of the story of the young woman, with the local additions, which he gave to a Star reporter this morning. Mr. Shaw thinks that such a devotion as this girl has shown ought to be recognized by some benevolent person, in the form of financial assistance as a loan or otherwise to ensure her attendance at the Normal until she wins a first class diploma.

"Then she again sat on the veranda and her husband came and talked to her, while the musicians were playing, and asked her again to go home with him, she again refusing.

"There was no drinking. There was no liquor in the house and none of the boys took any to the home. There was no carousing.

"About 3:30 Sunday morning, some time after the singing boys had gone, my sister and I had occasion to go out into the yard. On our return from the small house George appeared behind us and I let go my sister and was between my sister and George. He grabbed her by the arm and demanded that she go home with him and she refused. Before that he had used a vile word and she had paid little attention. I told him not to hurt my sister and he told her to mind my own business. Then I saw the flash. He had fired. My sister stumbled and I, scared, ran and hid behind a mango tree. I saw every flash of every shot. I saw my sister fall at the third shot. I saw her husband bend over her. I saw her body after he had disappeared and she was dead.

Bernard Keleikolo testified that he and numerous other boys had called at the house and spent the evening playing on guitars and singing and hulaing. He did not say whether he was singing a hula or dancing a hula.

In speaking of the murdered woman Bernard sometimes referred to her as Mrs. George Kaleikini, sometimes as Mrs. Emily Kaleikini and sometimes as Emily.

He stated that he had very frequently called at the Kani house. About three times a week, dancing nights, when he and others would go to get the ladies of the house to attend dances and socials.

He was asleep on the veranda when the other boys had gone, a little while before the shooting.

He was awakened by quarreling in the yard and he saw Mabel and Emily and George talking in the yard. Then came the shooting and Bernard concealed himself on the veranda. Afterwards he peeped around the corner and saw the body of Emily lying huddled on the ground with her husband standing over it.

The man had a revolver as if he was cleaning or reloading the gun, Bernard did not know which. George stayed the about ten minutes, thought Keleikini had a husband, but unknown the husband.

Bernard was positive that it was the
